WILLIAMS CEDAR AD TO VICTIMS

Veterans and the families of veterans stationed at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, between 1957 and 1983 may have been exposed to contaminated water. Individuals exposed may have experienced severe illnesses, such as adult leukemia, bladder cancer, kidney cancer, liver cancer, and non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, among other conditions. If you or someone you love has struggled to obtain justice before now, you may be able to benefit from a lawsuit against the government for your injuries. At Williams Cedar, we concentrate our practice on assisting clients who have suffered from environmental contamination. We are past fighters for the cause of helping victims injured by environmental toxins and are now ready to help Camp Lejeune contamination victims.
